Mrs. Borden's legal adviser declared to-day that legal action would be taken providing it could be proved that Miss Barden had been kidnapped by the mysterious women in the motor that stopped outside the sanatorium grounds late Wednesday afternoon. The girl, it was pointed out, is under age. On the other hand, there is no evidence that any suasion—either physical or moral—was used to induce the girl to fice.

Itegarding the conflicting statements which had been made at his sanato-ium during the day, Dr. W. C. Adams aid over the telephone to-night: "Miss Borden is not here. She did not return last night. I have no idea where she is, and I am taking no part in the search for her."

The death of Judge Cummings, member of the Senate from the First Virginia District, makes two vacancies in the upper body of the Legislature, the other having been caused by the resignation of E. C. Folkes, of Richmond. The district is composed of Washington and Smyth Counties and the city of Bristol. For several terms it was represented by A. T. Lincoln, of Smyth, who was defeated by Judge Cummings in the last election by an overwhelming majority. The two parties will now engage in a contest over the unexpired term, but with the Republicans divided, and with all of the publicans divided, and with all of the Southwest in better shape from a De ocratic standpoint since lienry Stuart's campaign for Congress, hances are that the death of Judge No quieter or more unobtrusive men er ever sat in the Capitol than the ate Senator. He listened attentively o all debates, followed legislation closely, voted regularly, but made no speeches. He had had plenty of ex-perience before the public as lawyer and judge, but was districtined to hear his own voice. However, he worked indefatigably for such measures as he championed.
